Re: Word-Salad [...a mixture of seemingly random words and phrases...like pinfacesnaptwittub, or didyamissmemuch]

Dear Guest,

Even though I have little of importance left to say, if I ever did, some of you recently indicated feeling somewhat amiss of a "word-salad", so I thought to send you one final parting note anyhow. It all started with berries, then toilet paper, and so on these notes apparently became historically hysteric and the other way around. Yet always with my honest intent to convey sensible information to the benefit of the vast majority of you while sometimes baffled, and our crew and staff alike.

All too soon our ways will part for a while and of course we'll send you off in Grand style before that, knowing that you'll be "out there on your own" from thereon. Hopefully we'll have prepared you well for the rest of the other World as it might have blissfully escaped you for the last four months. Be well, be strong, you can do it, and know that we'd love to welcome you home soonest with your ms Amsterdam family and friends, and of course, our precious crew!

Always at your service, your one and only,

Henk Mensink
Hotel Director
