Captain Alex Golubev

Alexander Golubev started his career in 1977 as a sailor onboard the sea-tug Statnyi in the Laptev Sea (Arctic Ocean), where he gained his first sea going and ice-navigating experience. He later attended both the Odessa Marine College and Odessa Marine Academy, completing his marine studies in 1989.

Captain Alexander became an Officer in 1980 and in 1987 he began working onboard passenger ships as the Chief Officer. Today with more than 23 years being in command of various cruise ships sailing worldwide and over 120 voyages to the Antarctic, Arctic and Greenland, Captain Alexander is a highly experienced mariner. This means that he possesses very good management, navigational and ship-handling skills. He is also a highly experienced Ice Master and an expert of Polar Regions and has an instinctive feel for the unique requirements of expedition cruising - which are quite different from the normal cruise industry. In addition he is well familiar with the luxury cruise ship product, which market niche calls for a different range of management skills and responses to client needs.
